Nan Patterson's former husband must be one of the forgiving and forgetting sort. He has remarried Nan.

An Illinois woman is waging war on the afternoon "pink teas." Perhaps the black variety suits her better.

No wonder the manufacturers of various patent medicines and the sellers thereof are up in arms over the recent ruling of the commissioner of internal revenue. Commissioner Yerkes has decided that patent medicines will be subjected to analysis instead of allowing the statement of the makers to go unchallenged. Whenever the concoctions are found to contain more than a certain amount of alcohol the makers and the druggists who sell the medicines will be taxed the usual license fees. A number of medicines will probably come within the limit.

The attempt to defeat McClellan for re-election as mayor of New York promises to end in a complete failure. The withdrawal of the Citizens' Union from the Fusion movement is an indication as to which way the straws point. Elected by Tammany, McClellan was looked at askance by the Citizens' Union as well as by the Fusionists, the belief being prevalent that he would be a Tammany mayor in every respect. But McClellan has surprised even his political enemies by what appears to be a clean administration. In view of that service it is idle to attempt to defeat him. The Citizens' Union knew it.

ADVERTISING A COMMUNITY.
 The citizens of Burlington are agitating the question of instituting a "chamber of commerce." This organization is to take the place of the old board of trade which started out with a flourish and ended without one. The purpose of such a body is to further the community's interests in every way possible, chiefly by inducing new industries to locate in town and to look after the railroad facilities, telephone service, etc. That a board of trade, chamber of commerce, or whatever it may be called, is of benefit to any city or town is certain. It serves to keep the community alive to its possibilities, that is, provided the organization does not itself lapse into a comatose condition. And to keep the chamber of commerce alive there is required some official, whose connection shall not be based on pure sentiment. There must be a head to look after the affairs, who shall be paid for his services. The Burlington Free Press has recognized the need of a paid official and advocates that if a chamber of commerce or similar body is formed in its city, a man should be paid to look after affairs. The benefits of the chamber of commerce for advertising purposes is pointed out by W. E. Greene who says: "I was very much impressed during my trip to the Pacific coast last winter with the good work being done by chambers of commerce in smaller cities than Burlington. It was our chief source of information in the cities visited and in each instance we found a cheerful secretary to greet us and give full information regarding the section we were visiting. Each was well supplied with readable literature showing the special advantage offered by that particular city over others in that section. While it is true that we once had a board of trade that did not fulfill our expectations, it would seem that from a chamber of commerce conducted properly and given the right support by our progressive business men, their benefit would be derived by all in our city."

Barre's progressive merchants have filled the post of duty here by forming an association, whose aims, while primarily directed toward the improvement of conditions for themselves, are yet oftentimes spent in advancing the city's interests, as they realize that while helping the city they are indirectly bringing a measure of prosperity to themselves. The Barre Merchants' Association has also realized the necessity for employment of a paid secretary, whose business it is to represent the association. That much has been accomplished by the organization is certain. If the

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

What the State Papers Have to Say About It.
 Percival W. Clement says he will be a candidate for the governorship before the next republican state convention. Just to make matters plain, Mr. Clement, do you expect to abide by the result of that convention, or do you intend to bolt the minute things do not result to your satisfaction. — St. Johnsbury Republican.

We publish elsewhere the letter of Hon. P. W. Clement announcing his candidacy for the nomination for the Governorship. Fletcher D. Proctor is already in the field and is making a strenuous canvass both by letter-writing and personal solicitation. If these two men remain in the field a lively campaign may be expected, as Mr. Clement has some pretty strong arguments in his letter in behalf of his candidacy.—Morrisville News and Citizen.

Clement announces his candidacy for the governorship and the platform upon which he enters the field, in a manner straight forward enough to be plain to everyone. But his views on the most important points were well known, having come to us in song and story before. He has however introduced a few variations in the way of business reforms and internal improvements. Mr. Clement possesses ability and energy, and with his originality in the introduction of features there is promise of a lively and entertaining campaign.—Hardwick Gazette.

That any American citizen has the right to create a political diversion on his own account, if he can, must be admitted. In 1903, the Hon. Percival W. Clement, in his spectacular effort to secure the governorship, gave a good show to crowded houses in the towns where he billed his combination. That he has the ability and the means to give even a better show than before goes without saying, but as a serious factor in the campaign of 1906, he is discounted in advance by a questioning of his motives on the part of the voters whose support he seeks. To lead a campaign of needed reform upon the demand of citizens with the good of the state at heart and with personality a secondary consideration is a very laudable exemplification of public duty. There is no such call, however, for Mr. Clement, and in entering a campaign for the governorship he does so for reasons better known to himself than to the general public. But, of course, this will not handicap his making an interesting diversion, however far short of success it is predestined to fail.—Morrisville Messenger.

If Percival W. Clement thought he seized the psychological moment when he announced his candidacy on the eve of the fish and game banquet he deceived himself. Judging from reports of this gathering it was not his day or his crowd and the latter was as representative as could be gathered together. Four years ago Mr. Clement was a candidate for governor. The Caledonian prophesied that he would prove a formidable candidate. This was doubted at the time by many of our contemporaries but our prophecy was fulfilled for the regular republican candidate failed of election by the people. That was decidedly a Clement year. The leader fell outside the breastworks, but he stormed the prohibition fortress and his local option banner waved triumphant.

We shall make another prophecy and predict that the next Republican governor will not be Mr. Clement, but Col. Fletcher D. Proctor. Mr. Clement will have in the coming campaign no paramount issue and Vermont Republicans hate a bolter. It will not be his year and our political forecast is that the weather before next June will be very in-Clement for the gentleman from Rutland.—St. Johnsbury Caledonian.

EAST BARRE.
 The Rebekahs will hold their ball Wednesday evening, Sept. 20. The Odd Fellows and their families are invited.

MARSHFIELD.

W. H. H. Smith is reported as convalescent.
 The Good Templars will have a box social at Castle Hall next Tuesday evening, the 19th. Every lady is requested to bring two boxes of food, each made exactly like the other. One will be sold at auction, the other, —?

Eben Dodge met with quite a serious accident last week Sunday. While cutting corn by hand, in an ensilage cutter, he reached up under the apron to hustle the corn, when the middle finger of the left hand was caught in the knife, cutting the finger in such a manner as to necessitate unjointing at the middle joint. Mr. Dodge rode to Marshfield village and Dr. H. S. Carver dressed the wound, after amputating the injured part.

Harry Townsend returned from a six days' trip to Boston last Saturday evening.

Section Boss Harry Townsend was obliged to discharge two of his help on the road last Monday, namely, Ed. Hawes and Leon Rathbone.
 C. H. Collins bought Frank Northrop's ensilage cutter last week Monday.

At the special meetings this week, Rev. J. A. Dixon of Hardwick will preach Monday and Tuesday evenings. Thursday and Friday evenings are not yet scheduled.

All members of the Rathbone Sisters are requested to attend a called meeting in Castle Hall next Saturday evening.

Northrop Brothers purchased a new ensilage cutter of Warren Field last Saturday, and Frank will start out on a round of cutting next Wednesday.

It is understood that the schools in town have free passes into the Caledonia County Fair next Tuesday, September 19th. Quite a delegation will avail themselves of the privilege and attend.

The hard frosts of Wednesday and Thursday nights laid low all vegetation heir to frostbite. Potatoes are reported as small and few in a hill.

D. K. Lucas and S. Swerdfefer were in Peacham last Wednesday at Frank Clandler's.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Tucker gave a farewell reception in honor of their son, Leslie C., last Thursday evening. About seventy of Mr. Tucker's young friends were invited. Cake and ice cream were served to the company. Leslie started for Pasadena, Cal., this morning. He is anticipating a stop of several months, at least. William Lang of Cabot and two ladies from Montpelier are to make the trip at the same time, making it much more pleasant for him.

Rev. F. E. Currier of Williamstown stopped over night at the home of E. A. Rosebrook Friday and Saturday. Rev. Currier preached in Plainfield Sunday morning, taking in his usual afternoon work at the quarry on his way home.

We are soon to have another millinery parlor opened. Mrs. Wallace Lamberton has already purchased stock, and Mr. Lamberton has made improvements at his home on Main street by placing new two-lighted windows in the house.

E. A. Thomas has greatly improved his house and shop by applying a new coat of paint. The buildings are a pretty brown now. Eugene Morrill is the painter.

Arch Hatchelder of Plainfield was in town Saturday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Case and Elouise of Plainfield visited at Henry Lamberton's Sunday.

The Congregational ladies' aid society held a lawn party and social at the home of J. W. Mears last Wednesday evening, which was very well attended.

Henry Kellogg, who has been at home about three weeks from Lisbon, N. H., sick with stomach trouble, is now able to be out of doors.

J. A. Ennis has a new 'phone on the Union line, and Mrs. Eva Lamberton one on the Molly Falls line.

The Tony Deer Comedy Co. will have complete control of the boards at Folsom's hall this week.

MAKING OVER DRESSES.

Getting a New Dress Out of an Old One Is Not an Impossibility.

It is amazing what a skilful woman can do with a last season's dress and a little new trimming. Every woman can do the same if she will learn how. The way to learn how is to read the Household Department of the Boston Daily Globe, where making over gowns is explained by clever women whose brains are as good as money.

a low price—a cheap price—is the principal argument used in selling a stove, and saving "you a heap of money" crops out many, many times in the talk, you can make up your mind that quality, durability and many other essentials have been saved off to get that cheap price.

It costs money to make a good stove—to fit the doors and drafts so that it will hold fire and save fuel. As to the material, it can be bought just as cheap as desired, but only the best will wear and last.

The famous Round Oak is the cheapest stove for you to buy; it has been tried and tested for years. You will like it, for it burns any kind of fuel successfully.

It is as easily regulated as a lamp and will last a lifetime.

Look for the name "Round Oak" on the leg. It is necessary, for there are many imitations.
